amUous Mind Puzzles are free. Get them by sending me a letter (include SASE), email, or by ftp://wuarchive.wustl.edu/doc/misc/mind-puzzles. Answers are never given out (it'would spoil the fun), but a help key is available. If you write, tell me how you came across the Puzzles. If you use them in a classroom or other special setting, I'd love to hear about it. Each edition contains puzzles from people the world over, so send me your puzzle ideas. I look forward to being able to present them in future editions. Puzzles, besides mine, are marked with their author's initials. Should you wish to support the Puzzles financially, you may send a contribution (suggested $5-$10 payable to David S McMeans, please) to my address at left. In any event, if you appreciate my efforts, I'd be most honored to receive a pretty postcard highlighting something about the area in which you live. If you request the Puzzles via postal mail, a contribution to defray my costs is greatly appreciated.
